

Ken Wills

Ken Wills is a frequently seen member of the Pagan community. He is a retired T.R.G. and Water Police officer. He has been an A-grade professional rugby league player for South Sydney and NSW state gymnastics champion, a professional shooter, bodyguard and big game fisherman. His friend, Robert Barret, has written about many of Ken's exploits in his Les Norton series including his foray in to the Pagan scene in the recent Rosealeen's Baby. His immersion in traditional western 'Men's Business' culture has made him the perfect person to write articles on the Pagan origins of football, icons, gladiators, knightly conduct and knot magick etc. for several Pagan magazines. Ken is a practitioner of Scottish and sailor's magick. His in-pu't is greatly appreciated for the men's spirituality aspect of this weekend.

Even The Gods Fk Up

Enjoy Ken's humorous tales of Shiva, Zeus, Cuchulain, Jesus, Merlin, King Arthur and others, which show that being truly masculine and divine does not mean never making a mistake.

Ethics, Nobility and Knightly Conduct

Ken and She` lead a discussion about Pagan ethics as survival, service and personal growth. Do we honour those amongst us who do great things? Why?

Sufi Dancing

This traditional male ritual will be lead by Ken Wills. Sufi dancing raises energy and alters consciousness, for union with the divine masculine and love. It is a slow methodical rhythmic rotation technique that when mastered can be used at any time. Women are welcome at this ritual to drum and chant.

Traditional Tantra 5ms Rite

Shé and Ken will be conducting this main ritual together
